It's National Library Week: Connect with Your Library for Programs, Classes and of Course, Books!

Mechanicsburg, PA – The Cumberland County Library System encourages all community members to visit their local public library in person or online to explore and access services and programs, during National Library Week, April 3-9. Cumberland County's public libraries offer a wide array of programs, classes, and resources that are available in person or from the comfort of home.

National Library Week is a time to highlight the essential role libraries, librarians, and library workers play in transforming lives and strengthening communities. The theme for this year's National Library Week is "Connect with Your Library," which promotes the idea that libraries are places to get connected to technology by using broadband, computers, and other resources. Libraries also offer opportunities to connect with media, programs, ideas, and classes, in addition to books. Most importantly, libraries also connect communities to each other.

Libraries of all types continue to go above and beyond to keep their communities connected by expanding resources and embracing inclusion in their programming, resources, and collections. Libraries across the country are making a difference in people's lives by providing electronic learning resources like Tutor.com for homework and job search help and wi-fi access for students and workers who may lack internet access at home.

This National Library Week, the public can show their appreciation and support for libraries by visiting their library in person or online, following them on social media, and using the hashtag #NationalLibraryWeek. First sponsored in 1958, National Library Week is a national observance sponsored by the American Library Association and libraries of all types across the country each April.
